John Thomas Ough

The youngest of ten children of Richard and Betsy Ough, John Thomas Ough was born at Washougal in 1863. Growing up along the Columbia River, he attended Washougal School. From an early age he was interested in the riverboats, and when he reached adulthood he became the Captain of one. The "Hattie Belle," named after his wife, was one of the boats that he piloted. Later he returned to the family farm in order to take care of his mother.

In 1888 John married Hattie Belle Durgan, daughter of Ezra Durgan and Elizabeth Ginder. She was born on November 25, 1869, at Battle Ground. They lived on the farm until 1910 when they moved to the White Swan Reservation in the Yakima Valley because of Hattie's health. Three years later John and his family returned to Washougal and lived there after his wife's death from pulmonary tuberculosis on May 22, 1913, at White Swan. John passed away from tuberculosis in 1917 and was buried in the Washougal Memorial Cemetery beside his wife.
